Task 4

You are going to read an extract from a book on linguistics. Five phrases have been removed from the text. Fill the gaps with the phrases from the list. There are extra phrases you do not need to use. Write your answers on YOUR ANSWER SHEET.

Example: There is a vast array of literature on the topic.

vast array of	order to transform	that is	to broadcast	whatever reason
take it or leave it	whether it	you hang out

Slang words are "bad." Everybody says so — everybody 36. that is, except linguists! When linguists look at who uses slang and 37. whether it affects the quality of language, what they find is quite the opposite. A healthy language is one where there's a lot of variation among speakers. Slang is a normal part of that variation and is one of the ways that you, as a speaker, use language 38. to broadcast your social identity. The way you talk — including the slang words that you use — reflects your personal style, where you grew up, how old you are, and the people 39. you hang out with. And yesterday's "bad" slang often becomes tomorrow's "good language" — this is part of the normal course of language change. A language without slang is a language in trouble: It means that, for 40. whatever reason, speakers aren't playing with their language anymore.
